One of the ways SAANYS has distinguished itself in the area of professional learning is through its active presence on NYSED teams, committees, and workgroups, the outcomes of which directly impact you and your school communities. Although the work associated with these groups is challenging and the commitment to meaningful participation is significant, SAANYS feels that it is worth it to have a real involvement in the development of statewide professional learning directions and all matters that impact students as well as educators. SAANYS is consistently invited by NYSED to participate actively on these teams, and the SAANYS involvement and appreciation are acknowledged and appreciated.

Most recently, SAANYS has participated on the NYSED Professional Learning Team (PLT), the NYSED Assessment Workgroup, and the Partner Evaluation Workgroup.

APPR Bill Gets Overwhelming Legislative Support

A unified bill to revise educator evaluations was passed on January 23, 2019 with nearly unanimous legislative approval. The bill decouples the mandatory use of state assessments in teacher and principal evaluations. The bill will require (if signed by the governor) the commissioner of education to develop regulations to determine allowable alternate assessments from which a district would use while negotiating their own APPR plan through collective bargaining. Other aspects of the current evaluation system such as the observation component, use of the rating categories, and required use of an independent observer remain in place.

Gun Reform Bills Pass Legislature – Schools Play a Part

A comprehensive gun control package passed both the senate and assembly at the end of January. A number of issues were addressed in the bill including enhancing student safety on school buses. The governor is proposing authorizing school districts to enter into contracts with third-party providers for the installation of stop-arm cameras. Such cameras would document and record illegal passing of a school bus and issue a resulting ticket. The processing of the images would be the responsibility of local law enforcement agencies and as an added deterrent, the proposal would increase the fine for passing a stopped school bus and such fines would be paid to the school district. In addition, the governor has put forth a proposal that would require students to wear seatbelts on school buses.

Governor Spotlights School Bus Safety

In his fiscal year 2020 executive budget, Governor Cuomo announced new proposals for addressing student safety on school buses. The governor is proposing authorizing school districts to enter into contracts with third-party providers for the installation of stop-arm cameras. Such cameras would document and record illegal passing of a school bus and issue a resulting ticket. The processing of the images would be the responsibility of local law enforcement agencies and as an added deterrent, the proposal would increase the fine for passing a stopped school bus and such fines would be paid to the school district. In addition, the governor has put forth a proposal that would require students to wear seatbelts on school buses.

Know Your Tenure Areas

For most administrators, one of the most important aspects of employment is obtaining tenure. Despite this achievement, the SAANYS Legal Department receives dozens of calls every year from members who cannot answer the question “What is tenure? What areas are the employing school districts to the following criteria:

- The full-time equivalent of a school district in the employing school district in the state of place (i.e., principal, assistant principal, director). There are pros and cons to each

- For a single tenure area, SAANYS would allow for internal promotions as administrators without having to start a new probationary period. However, it also allows for the district to involuntarily transfer employees into other administrative positions, sometimes even resulting in a denotation (although, not a loss in salary). Perhaps more importantly, it would be
What is instantly clear is that there is a wide gap between what the Regents and NYSECB say is needed and what the governor is proposing. There is usually a gap, but this one is broader than usual, especially when one looks at the details. For example, of the $2.1 billion increase the Regents is proposing, $1.6 billion is Foundation Aid. In the governor’s proposal of $956 million, $336 million is Foundation Aid, with $50 million of the $338 million being reserved for a community college set aside. Other significant differences include the Regents proposing an $85 million set aside for ELL (governor’s budget proposal zero), a Pre-K inclusion funding pilot at $46 million (governor’s budget proposal zero), and $25 million for CTE (governor’s budget zero). Also, the executive budget does not add any money to support improvement plans for schools new to recertification in the 2019-20 school year.

The executive budget proposal also, in my words, continues to run roughshod over the responsibilities of the locally elected school boards with respect to school level spending transparency. In 2019-20 approximately 50 percent (this will eventually be 100 percent) of school districts will be required to submit the State Financial Transparency form that will be used by the State Education Department (SED) and the Division of the Budget (DOB) to ensure (in theory) that the school budgetary level is equitably distributed. To be fair to SED, this is not something it sought, and it received no additional funding to do the work associated with implementing and administering this mandate. After review of the transparency forms, as well as additional information from the districts if requested by SED or DOB, the director of DOB, or the executive branch, creates a list of underfunded high needs districts. A district with an underfunded high needs school then needs to submit an equity plan to be approved by SED and spend a portion of its foundation aid increase on the schools identified by DOB as underfunded and high needs. If such a district fails to submit an equity plan, SED will do so and require the district to fund the identified school(s) in accordance with the plan drafted by SED.

Regulation by definition is prescriptive, but the local school spending regulatory scheme is more than oversight. It supports the governor’s narrative of a localism that don’t need more money to improve results but rather need to distribute it more fairly to those that need it the most. It also provides a mechanism for the executive branch to direct expenditures on a school level basis. It presumes incompetence at the local level where the district spending plan was developed by locally elected representatives and passed by a vote of district residents. This process seems intrusive. This strikes me not as oversight, but rather overreach.

Reopening the Black Box
Sponsor Opinion Piece by Dr. Bruce H. Crowder, Senior Researcher, Educational Vistas, Inc.

Paul Black and Dylan Willians’s research on the classroom, which many have alluded to as a “Black Box,” is just as timely as the day it was published. All types of inputs from the $1.2 billion increase feed into the box from teaching practices to resources. Their research began on what is happening inside the box. A general reaction was that whatever is happening is up to the teacher to make it work.

In responding to the question, they were led to explore the potential of assessment as an integral part of each student’s learning. They began with the proposition that teaching and learning be interactive. This is the only way for teachers to understand their students’ learning progress and challenges. Teachers could do through observation, discussions, and examinations of a student’s work. However, from their research, another component captured their interest. It was formative assessment which they saw as the heart of effective teaching. In addition, they deemed a student’s self-assessment as a critical part of formative assessment. Assessment involves all activities teachers undertook to acquire information to adjust and adapt teaching and learning activities. By itself, information about student performance from summative testing is insufficient to inform subsequent work. To build a culture of success, student feedback should be about the particular qualities of a student’s work with advice on what may be done to improve it.

The ultimate beneficiary of assessment information in order to improve is the student. Students are typically honest and reliable in assessing themselves and one another. To do this, students need recognition of desired goals, evidence about current performance, and some understanding about closing the gap between the two. Students should be trained in self-assessment to understand its purpose to become committed and effective participants in their learning.

This will require teacher-student dialogue whereby teachers listen carefully to the talk, discuss student work and actions through which students display their state of learning. Here is where teachers need to give students time to respond or have them discuss their thinking in pairs or small groups. The dialogue needs to be thoughtful and reflective for students to be encouraged to participate. What is instantly clear is that there is a wide gap between what the Regents and NYSECB say is needed and what the governor is proposing. There is usually a gap, but this one is broader than usual, especially when one looks at the details. For example, of the $2.1 billion increase the Regents is proposing, $1.6 billion is Foundation Aid. The advent of Next Generation Learning Standards is an important time to move students from passive reception to active participation in their learning.

Highlights of the January Board of Regents Meeting

Rigorous discussions on substitute teaching, identification of schools as Comprehensive Support and Improvement (CSI) and Targeted Support and Improvement (TSI), and Culturally Responsive Practices were the order of the day at the January meeting of the Board of Regents. As these rigorous discussions were taking place all at once, simultaneously across the street at the capitol, the legislature was re-introducing APPR legislation. 2019 is going to be a rollercoaster ride.

Culturally Responsive-Sustaining Education

The first item on the agenda was the introduction of the draft framework for Culturally Responsive-Sustaining (CR-S) education. One of the key challenges to this work was not having a common language base to explore and talk about the issues. In order to establish a framework, SED created various groups (an expert committee, stakeholder groups, and an advisory board) to guide their work on this topic.

The definition developed for the framework states that “Culturally Responsive-Sustaining education is grounded in a cultural view of learning and human development in which multiple expressions of diversity (e.g., race, social class, gender, language, sexual orientation, nationality, religion, ability) are recognized and regarded as assets for teaching and learning.”

The initiative begins with an immediate statewide awareness phase, followed by a building capacity phase in the spring of 2019. The capacity building phase will include professional development that will provide information on building responsive environments, using instructional materials that embrace diversity, and engaging respectfully with families and communities.

Discussion Around the Table

Regent Finn started the conversation by asking how this initiative would be monitored in order to understand whether the outcomes are tracking with districts. Regent Collins followed by asking Superintendent Harper (a member of the expert panel and the first Native American superintendent in NYS) how staff were provided professional development that will provide information on building responsive environments, using instructional materials that embrace diversity, and engaging respectfully with families and communities.

Resolution on the Roll-back of Obama Administration Guidance

The board also passed a resolution to reaffirm the board’s commitment to fostering climates and school cultures that are safe havens for learning where all students feel welcomed. The resolution is in response to federal roll-back of the Obama administration’s guidance on reducing racial discrimination in the use of school suspensions.

ESSA Update

Senior Deputy Commissioner John Ebert provided the board with an update that focused on the list of schools identified as CSI and TSI. Embargoed data had been sent to districts in order to provide an opportunity to respond to the data and appeal the identification as CSI or TSI. According to Commissioner Elia, New York State is the only state that previes the draft list to impacted districts and she is fully supportive of this approach. This update prompted a serious discussion on how participation in the state assessment program and student identification as a low performing school. Some members of the board spoke about recent conversations with those who had just been identified as low performing. This generated a review of how the various formulas used in the academic achievement and student growth formulas use participation rate. In large part this is due to federal requirements under ESSA to report academic progress using the state’s approved assessment program. A source of confusion seems to be the use of rate of participation in formulas and the separate issue of districts with high opt-out rates being penalized for reduced student participation. In part, this confusion may have been a holdover misunderstanding from an initial set of regulations that would have penalized districts with high opt-out rates by having title funds reduced. Such regulations were revised so that districts with high opt-out rates will only be required to develop need assessments and plans to increase participation rates in state assessments, not have funding reduced. It still remains true, however, that some districts with high opt-out rates and low scores on academic progress and student growth could be identified as CSI or TSI based on student performance.

HOW WILL YOU SUPPORT EACH CHILD, REGARDLESS OF GENDER, ETHNICITY, BACKGROUND, OR LEARNING CHALLENGES, TO SUCCEED IN SCHOOL AND BEYOND?

This year’s theme, Educate for Equity, focuses on rising to the challenge of meeting the needs of diverse student populations and rapidly changing communities. How does EQUITY become more than a buzz word and result in actions that result in more affirming, inclusive, and culturally responsive schools and classrooms? We are seeking member practitioner workshops that focus on the many aspects of Equity from the perspective of our varied leadership roles. We want to hear what you are doing in your school. What’s working and what are you learning along the way? Tell your school’s story and share your expertise with colleagues from across New York State at this year’s October 20-21 conference at the beautiful Sagamore Resort in Lake George. We hope to receive submissions from SAANYS members at all levels; certified and essential service leaders, as well as all building and district roles. Dr. Sharroky Hollie, executive director of The Center for Culturally Responsive Teaching and Learning (CCRTL) and author of multiple books on Culturally and Linguistically Responsive Schools, will be there with us to set the tone for what will surely be an enlightening and memorable personal and professional experience.

Access the submission form at saanys.org. For more information contact Karen Bronson at kbronson@saanys.org.

Learning from and sharing with one another is the best possible way to grow professionally. SAANYS is fortunate to have a wide range of practitioners with proven expertise and experience to support your professional development needs. Let SAANYS help you plan everything from an administrative team meeting during the school day, to an after-school or full-day workshop, to an administrative retreat or superintendent’s conference day for you or your teachers. These are all options that can take shape with SAANYS PD Your Way.

SAANYS 2019 Retiree Student Scholarships

Open to any high school senior graduating in June 2019. Applicants must be sponsored by a current SAANYS active retiree, affiliate retiree, or associate retiree member in good standing. Students must have demonstrated good school and community citizenship, are planning to go on to higher education, and who otherwise satisfy criteria by the SAANYS Retiree Scholarship committee. Students are responsible for seeing that the forms are accurately and completely filled out. The SAANYS Retiree Board reserves the right to not process applications found to be incomplete as of the application deadline.

Lessons Learned 3.0
Experienced administrators sharing their hard-earned wisdom

February 27, 2019 | 4:30-6:00pm
SAANYS Headquarters

Join some of our seasoned school leaders who will share their hard-won wisdom on the kinds of dicey relationships and situations that all face. How do you handle negative factors among faculty? What if you and your superintendent’s board differ on tenure recommendations? What if you are a new administrator drowning in paperwork and stuck in interminable meetings?

Current and aspiring administrators are invited to attend this panel discussion focused on these kinds of situations that are very common, challenging, and timeless for school leaders. This event is not about the latest technology. It’s about the lessons learned regarding leadership, relationships, and navigating challenges that demand reasoned and thoughtful responses.

Please note: Although the format will be similar to the previous events, the scenarios are new. So if you attended previously, we hope to see you again!

Here’s what previous participants had to say:

“Having access to the wealth of knowledge and experience on the panel was wonderful. The best part was practical advice and finally feeling like I’m not alone.”

“This was informative and after work hours – otherwise I wouldn’t have been able to come. I appreciated the advice about scheduling time.”

The Board of Education of the Monticello Central School District (BOE of the Monticello CSD) and the Monticello Administrators and Supervisors Association (Monticello ASA) negotiated a successor contract that relates to changes in compensation, health insurance, unused sick time, work year, and vacations.

The compensation structure was modified as follows: the MOA provides that the administrators’ salaries increase 2.8 percent each year of the four-year contract. Additionally, the contract provides that the 2018-2019 salary increase will be retroactive to July 1, 2018, and is calculated after any longevity increase is added to the base salary of the members. Each longevity increment (there are five increments) was increased by $300 and the 12-year longevity payment was reduced to 11 years.

In exchange, association members will contribute 1 percent more each year for the duration of the contract, ending on June 30, 2021 at 15 percent employee cost-sharing toward the health insurance premium. However, the MOA also provides a benefit improvement in health insurance for retirees. The parties agreed to a side letter of agreement that will allow any unit member who retires and has completed 10 consecutive years of service with at least five years of service as an administrator in the district to receive health insurance in retirement for life of the individual retiring at 72 percent district paid from 50 percent for individual coverage or 35 percent for a family plan.

The new contract also tax shelters the payment of unused sick time upon retirement. Such payments will be made as employer non-elective contribution into a designated R.E.C. 403(b) account for the benefit of retiring employees.

A Message from the SAANYS Legal Department

the person with the least seniority in the tenure area and not necessarily the person in the position being eliminated who will be let go and placed on the preferred eligibility list. Conversely, in districts with narrower tenure areas, it is entirely possible that when a position is abolished, the most senior administrator in the bargaining unit is then gone.

Tenure areas are not only important for purposes of layoffs, but also for recall. A certificated educator who has been laid off due to a position abolishment will be placed on a Preferred Eligibility List (PEL) for a period of seven years. Every time there is an opening in the tenure area, the employer must offer it to the most senior individual on the PEL, even if they previously declined recall. In districts where the tenure areas are broader, recall does not have to be for the exact position that was abolished, but can be for any position within the tenure area, so long as the person seeking recall has the appropriate certifications. For example, an elementary principal who was placed on the PEL within the tenure area of principal is entitled to recall as the high school principal.

As you can see, knowing your appointed tenure area and those used for other administrators is important for your individual rights. It is also important for your bargaining unit as a whole. School districts have the initial ability to set tenure areas. However, any deviation from the previously established tenure areas is a mandatory topic of bargaining and must be negotiated with the unit. Therefore, any change to a single tenure area for all administrators, it will require the signatures of every person because the least senior person within an assistant principal tenure area could possibly have more seniority than the most senior within a principal tenure area, possibly creating inequities should an assistant principal position be cut. Thus, a single person who could be impacted by a change in tenure areas, in order to agree will kill the entire potential agreement.

This article only gives the broadest of glances at a complicated and important issue. It is very important that any issues relating to tenure areas, potentially including promotions, be brought to the attention of the SAANYS Legal Department promptly, as some potential actions have very narrow statutes of limitations.

Additionally, in the first year of the elementary assistant principal, the high school principal, and the director of PPS will receive the respective equitable adjustments retroactive to July 1, 2018: $3,000, $3,000, and $5,000. Members may also receive longevity payments. The new contract also includes a tenure stipend of $1,500, plus a three-step longevity schedule: after 5 years $3,000, after 7 years 10% of salary, and after 10 years $5,000.

Tri-Valley CSAAA members are enrolled in the Empire Plan and currently contribute 13 percent to either individual or family coverage. On July 1, 2019, the cost sharing will increase for members to 13 percent for individual or 14 percent for family coverage. On July 1, 2020, members with family coverage will pay one percent more (or 15 percent) for the plan. Employees are free to opt out of the district’s health insurance program and are entitled to $3,200 each year. In retirement, members are entitled to insurance coverage based upon their years of service. Those who have served between six and eight years will receive eighty percent paid coverage from the district for life for an individual plan, and fifty percent for a family plan. Those who have served nine years or more will receive one hundred percent coverage for an individual plan or seventy five percent of the difference between the cost of the dependent plan and the individual plan.

Article IV of the CBA provides for binding arbitration of grievances.

What Members Are Saying

“Just over three years ago, the Garden City Administrators Association cast a unanimous vote to switch our representation to SAANYS. Our affiliation with SAANYS has been the absolute right decision and continues to receive unanimous unit approval. Our association should have made this move long ago”

board members needed to revisit this issue, which they did last May. However, the item was tabled as consensus could not be reached on a minimum level of education for substitute teachers. The current board members continue to be uneasy with allowing persons with a high school diploma and without certification to provide services up to 90 days. Therefore they asked SED staff to go back to the drawing board, obtain more data from superintendents and propose an alternative option. The alternative options were presented at this January meeting.

The chart on page 3 summarizes the proposed revisions. There was continued debate on the provision to allow persons with a high school diploma only to provide services up to 90 days and the item was tabled again.

Discussion Around the Table

Despite input from districts that urge the allowable use of persons with a high school diploma as substitute teachers, a number of members of the board remain concerned about the lack of certification for a person to teach for approximately one half of the instructional days. Various scenarios were played out that demonstrated that in some situations a very young person, with just a high school diploma, would be allowed to provide instruction to basically their same aged peer group. Similarly other members of the board indicated that superintendents and district superintendents would most certainly use good faith judgment on this issue. The item was tabled again in hopes that an agreeable solution could be brought forth at a future meeting.

Transitional H Pathway for School Business Administrators

The board adopted a proposal to allow persons who have at least three years of experience as a certificate public accountant in a school district, BOCES, or municipality to be eligible for a Transitional H certificate. This proposal will go out for a 60-day public comment period and is anticipated to be adopted in May, 2019.
