Career and Tech Focus of Regents Meeting

The Board of Regents met on September 15 and 16. The main item discussed had to do with the establishment of a career and technical education pathway for high school graduation. Based on the latest data available, for the 2012-13 school year, 8,380 high school graduates (4.67 percent) are awarded high school diplomas with a career and technical education pathway for high school graduation. Based on conversations with Regents members and department leaders during 2013-14, SAANYS was aware that such an item would be raised and acted upon early in 2014-15. Therefore, SAANYS met with partners from the NYS Federation of School Administrators (AFL-CIO colleagues in New York City, Buffalo, and Yonkers) to develop a position paper under the NYS School Administrators Consortium (NYSSAC) moniker. The NYSSAC document posted on the SAANYS website calls for:

• General support for the expansion of pathways to be made available to students to graduate with a meaningful high school diploma/credential that opens opportunities for children to learn, to add classroom space and to expand high-quality prekindergarten programs, to replace classroom trailers with permanent instructional space, and to install high-tech smart security features in schools. Shall the SMART SCHOOLS BOND ACT OF 2014 be approved?

School District Allocations

If the referendum is passed, each school district will receive a pro-rata share of the referendum funds commensurate with their relative allocation of state aid. The projects will be fully state funded and there will be no local contribution required of the school district. Each school district currently knows what its allocation would be if the referendum is successful, and the allocations are posted on Governor Cuomo’s website: http://www.gov.ny.gov/smart-schools-ny

Uses of Smart School Funds:

Funds received through the bond act may be used for capital projects related to educational technology equipment, including but not limited to, interactive whiteboards; computer servers; tablet, desktop, and laptop computers; high-speed broadband or wireless internet connectivity for schools and communities; capital projects to construct, enhance, or modernize educational facilities to accommodate present educational needs and to provide instructional space to replace transportable facilities to accommodate prekindergarten programs; and to install high-tech smart security features in schools.
Board of Regents Finance Symposium

On September 16, the fourth annual Board of Regents Finance Symposium was held in the State Education Department’s Cultural Education Center located in Albany, New York. The symposium titled, “Strategic Investments: Streamlining Early Childhood Programs to Improve Outcomes” was opened by Regent James Tallon, Jr., who also serves as chairperson of the Board of Regents Finance Committee. Keynote presentations were delivered by two speakers:

- Susan Neuman, professor of early childhood and literacy and chairperson of the Teaching and Learning Department at the New York University Steinhardt School of Culture, Education, and Human Development. Professor Neuman spoke on the importance of early brain development.

- Michael Petro, executive vice president of the Committee for Economic Development. Mr. Petro focused on how continued investment in child care and early education is critical to business and America’s future economic returns and employment.

Following a question and answer period with keynote speakers, a panel presentation “Implementing the State’s Current Prekindergarten Program,” was conducted. The panel was moderated by Sherry Cleary, co-chairperson of the Early Child Advisory Council on the Need for Quality Programming and Evaluation. The four panelists were:

- Dr. Tonya Thompson, assistant superintendent for curriculum, instruction and accountability for the Binghamton City School District.
- Heather Lietz, assistant superintendent for curriculum and instruction for the Sodus School District (a rural school district operating two of the state prekindergarten programs).
- Chris Moyer, elementary school principal for the Sodus School District.
- Jay Roscup, project administrator, 21st CCLC & ESD/V for the Lyons School District.

Sherry Cleary stressed the need for directors and principals to receive professional development and support in regard to early childhood education. In regard to early childhood education personnel in general, she recommended that hiring procedures include recruitment of quality teachers with field experience, and induction procedures that include on-the-ground support availability.

A major thrust of the presentations and discussions focused on the need to ensure that early childhood programs are high quality. Susan Neuman said “…it is just as important to focus upon quality.” It is expected that the information presented and discussed at the symposium will help shape the State Education Department’s legislative agenda and priorities for the coming year. For more information regarding the symposium, e-mail James Viola, director of government relations, at JViola@saanys.org.

doors to post-secondary education and career opportunities that are commensurate with students’ interests and abilities.

• Specific support for the establishment of a career and technical education pathway that aligns academic and industry standards.

• Students matriculating in a CTE pathway being able to apply at least one, but preferably two, appropriate CTE assessments that are tied to or required by industry standards in lieu of one or both social studies Regents examinations.

• Students successfully completing such a pathway should be awarded a Regents Diploma with CTE endorsement.

SAANYS also conferred with other members of the Educational Conference Board (ECB)* to develop a second position paper in support of a CTE pathway for high school graduation. For this reason, the board will establish and convene a Blue Ribbon Commission for the Arts, to be led by Regent Roger Tilles. A report in this regard is expected in the spring of 2015.

"The Educational Conference Board is comprised of members from: Superintendent of Education, NYS School Boards Association, NYSUT, Congress of Parents and Teachers, NYS Council of School Districts, NYS Association of School Business Officials, NYS Regents, and SAANYS."

Requirements to Receive a Smart Schools Grant

If the referendum is passed, in order to receive a Smart Schools Grant, each school district must complete a Smart School Investment Plan describing how the bond act funds were used, and the plan must be approved by the Smart Schools Review Board.

The plan is required to be developed in consultation with parents, teachers, students, community members, and other stakeholders. More specific requirements regarding the content/format of the plan were unavailable at the time of this writing; however, additional requirements are in place to permit nonpublic students limited access to technology through this program, beginning in 2014-15.

Upon request, students enrolled in nonpublic schools must be provided access, at no charge, to Smart Schools technology through this program, beginning in 2014-15.

For more information regarding the SAAANYS legislative agenda, the New York State Board of Regents, the Educational Conference Board, or other government relations concerns, contact James Viola, SAAANYS director of government relations, at JViola@saanys.org.

classroom units; and capital projects to install high-tech security features in school buildings and on campuses. To advise the state on how to “best invest” bond act funds, the governor established a three-member Smart Schools Commission; the members are:

• Geoffrey Canada, president and CEO for Harlem Children’s Zone

• Constance Evelyn, superintendent of the Auburn School District in Cayuga County

• Eric Schmidt, executive chairman of Google

In fulfilling its charge, the commission will convene three public symposia in order to receive testimony from invited speakers. Two symposia have been convened to date:

• Symposium 1, held on July 21, 2014 in Albany, focused upon Best Practices in Connectivity and Technology-enabled Education and Learning. Speakers were: David Salway, director of the New York State Broadband Program Office; Dr. Ellen Meier, director of the Center for Technology and School Change at Teachers College, Columbia University; Dale Breault, assistant director of the Northeastern Regional Information Center of Capital Region BOCES; Thomas Phillips, superintendent of the Watkins Glen School District; and Patterson Green, superintendent of the Sharon Springs School District.

• Symposium 2, held on September 17, 2014 in Buffalo focused upon Bridging the Broadband Divide in New York State. Speakers were: David Salway, director of the New York State Broadband Program Office; Tiffany Zou, data analyst at EducationSuperHighway; Jonathan Windhausen, executive director of the Schools, Health, and Libraries Broadband Coalition; Brenda Lehman, technology coordinator for the Marcus Whitman School Districts, and Dr. Peter Turner, dean of arts and sciences at Clarkson University.

The date and location for the third symposium was unavailable at the time of this writing.

GREAT BOOKS: THE AGENDA SERIES

There’s lots going on as we gear up for what promises to be our best SAANYS conference ever on October 26 and 27 at the Sagamore. We’ve had a record-breaking number of registrations from all regions of this big state of ours, and we are particularly proud of the number of first time attendees who will be there. A beautiful location and an outstanding line up of highlighted speakers and workshops is proving to be a winning combination!

In other news:
• It is great to see the interest in a new format we are using to increase the options for our members: Google hangouts. Our first series, Great Books, sold out quickly, as did the second series we added to accommodate the requests for this popular workshop. In addition to understanding that it can be difficult for busy leaders like you to get out of your buildings to attend workshops, we also understand that you can’t always find the time to read all the terrific professional books that are out there right now! This workshop (from 4:5 pm over the three Thursdays) will allow you to become familiar with the big ideas and themes in three of the most popular books right now – Mindset, Explicit Instruction and Crucial Conversations and share ideas with your colleagues. You will be sure to see more Google Hangout workshops in the future!
• The vital role of the assistant principal is evolving and expanding like never before, so we are happy to have been continued on page 8

In an effort to assist members in achieving the 175-hour professional development requirement, SAANYS provides completion certificates for conference and seminar attendees that can be used as verification of professional development hours.

Monday Workshops:

Session I
Monday, October 27
10:00 am - 11:15 am
Infusing the Common Core into PE, Health, and FACS

Nate Fligorides, Director of PE and Athletics, South Glens Falls CSD
This workshop, which focuses on infusing the CCLS in physical education, can serve as a model for other disciplines as well. Through examples, video, and group interaction, participants will learn how teachers of different disciplines can work together to strengthen grade-level expectations for all of their students. The connection between physical activity and cognitive learning and memory skills will also be explored.

Changing School Culture to Truly Reflect College and Career
Ray McNulty, Past President of ASCD and author of It’s Not an Act – They’re Creating the Schools We Need
This workshop focuses upon career readiness to emphasize essential skills and knowledge, making school more relevant and engaging for all students. Strategies for transforming schools to provide deeper learning experiences to prepare students for both college and career will be explored. This session will challenge your thinking about how your school’s culture reflects career as well as college readiness for your students.

From Administrator to Connected Lead Learner
Lissa Meade, MS Principal, Corinth and Victoria Day, Principal & Lead Learner, Governmen CSD
The goal of this workshop is to model how social media and technology, in various forms, can profoundly enrich your practice. Learn how to become an enlightened lead learner who knows that change is required if we are to transform our schools and our collective capacity to learn. As you juggle the challenges we all face, developing a Professional Learning Network (PLN) with like-minded educators will transform your approach, style, attitude, and message.

School Culture Drives School Results
Mark Montepare, Principal, East Aurora MS and 2013 SAANYS/NASSP Middle School Principal of the Year
The culture of a school is critical to its performance and success, yet climate is often neglected in the face of multiple demands on the system. How can you measure your building’s climate? What guidelines are useful in shaping the culture? This workshop will focus upon some practical things you can do today to make your school a happier and healthier learning environment.

Developmental Leadership through Courageous Conversations
Mike Daines, Bonnie Tyone, Mark Turner
SAANYS MentorCoach Program
Using an overview of the Ontario Principals’ Mentoring model as a framework, this workshop will focus on the how-to’s of quality conversations that build trusting relationships to support professional growth and student learning. Participants will see a live demonstration of a courageous mentoring conversation and leave with tips for informal growth-oriented conversations with colleagues.

SLOs for Student Success: Making the Most of Mandates
Lancaster CSD Leadership Team and eDoctrina
Educators across New York State have been implementing Student Learning Objectives. Most districts build SLOs in the fall and then forget about them until June. This workshop focuses on changing the SLOs focus from compliance to quality. Learn how to transform SLOs from a teacher evaluation instrument to a powerful tool for improving student learning and achievement over the course of a school year.

Legal and Legislative and Session
Arthur Schwimmer and James Voel, SAANYS
An overview of current legal and legislative events that directly impact the working conditions of school administrators. Topics include: current litigation that could potentially affect your rights as an administrator; annual professional performance reviews for principals and teachers; negotiation trends; recap of legislative and program/policy issues from 2014, project priority issues for 2015; current issues being addressed with the Board of Regents, the governor’s office, and the state legislature; and a discussion of how SAANYS works with other educational organizations to achieve positive results.

ECCAMP UPSTATE
NEW YORK 2014
Saturday, October 25
A number of SAANYS members have joined together to organize this “TeacherCamp,” which takes place in Queensbury, NY the day prior to the start of the SAANYS conference. ECCamp-Upstate NY offers a unique opportunity to share best practices and innovative ideas with colleagues before traveling north to SAANYS14. Register at: http://bit.ly/15tch #{ECCAMP}

Session III
Monday, October 27
11:30 am - 12:45 pm
Moving from a Culture of Competition to Collaboration in the Era of High-Stakes Testing: Linking Teacher Collaboration to Student Achievement
East Amherst Leadership Team
Participants will learn about the benefits of teacher collaboration for student achievement and the successful collaborative practices of one high-achieving team of teachers. Strategies for fostering a culture of collaboration and the use of common resources will be shared. Attendees will have the opportunity to reflect on conditions that may foster or hinder collaboration in their own building, as well as look ahead to developing an action plan.

Making It Stick: Common Core – A Multi-tiered System of Support
Measurement Inc. and CohnES MS Leadership Team
Schools are struggling to implement Common Core curricular and instructional strategies in a way that ensures struggling students will be college and career ready. This workshop focuses on a multi-tiered system of supports to efficiently and effectively use school resources, and participants will be able to assess their own school’s readiness and next steps for MTSS.

One Middle School’s Journey: Using Data to Lead the Hearts and Minds of Teachers
Rensselaer CSD Leadership Team
Has data driven instruction stalled in your district or has there been trouble getting it off the ground? Experience firsthand the process used by a 5-8 middle school using the Data Wise Process and the Collaborative Learning Cycle. Using data from NYS and STAR assessments to improve collaboration across disciplines and support common core learning for all students. The same process can be implemented in elementary and high schools as well.

Helping the Educator Think Outside the Box for Retirement
Greg Runneger, AIA
In this seminar, various strategies that can help you attain your financial goals and retire comfortably will be explored. The true costs of retirement, factors reshaping retirement income needs, and strategies to build retirement income and make it last will all be discussed. Some employer funded strategies that address these concerns, and if that can be built into future contract negotiations, will also be highlighted.

LEGAL BRIEFS
A Message From Rebekah Staats, SAANYS Counsel
RStaats@saanys.org

Arbitrator Enforces Anti-Abolishment Provision

to maintain unit jobs. Specifically, ESSAC agreed to waive 5/6th of its member’s 3.9 percent salary increase for the 2012-13 school year, and limit the number of unused vacation days members could cash in that school year from seven days to one day. These compensatory sacrifices were made on the district’s promise that the 32 positions within ESSAC as of May 2012 would remain filled during the entire upcoming school year.

This MOA was a short-term job security provision. However, shortly after reaching this agreement, the superintendent negotiated with an ESSAC member a separate employment contract for the member, a director, without the knowledge of ESSAC. The superintendent and the director reached an agreement in July 2012 that removed the director position from ESSAC, thereby reducing the number of positions below 32 and breaching the MOA. ESSAC was unaware of the secretly negotiated individual employment contract with the director until late November, when ESSAC leadership demanded the director pay his ESSAC dues. Upon learning that the director refused to pay unit dues because he was no longer a member of ESSAC, ESSAC filed a grievance in December 2012. With the assistance of SAANYS, the case progressed to the arbitration stage before Arbitrator Nancy Einschen in the summer of 2014.

SAANYS prosecuted the grievance at the arbitration stage for ESSAC. Arbitrator Einschen held that the district violated the MOA by reducing the agreed upon number of positions below 32 when the district unilaterally negotiated an individual employment contract with an ESSAC member, which also constituted an improper practice of “self-dealing.” Arbitrator Einschen considered the breach and fashioned the remedy to make ESSAC members whole again. Arbitrator Einschen ordered the district to pay ESSAC members the 5/6 salary increase and the ability to cash in 6 more vacation days this year, both items were forfeited as part of the original MOA. The remedy SAANYS was able to achieve for ESSAC shall result in a $180,000 award for the ESSAC members.

School districts are constantly facing budgetary constraints living within the property tax cap, and units may be involved in negotiating agreements to preserve the positions of its members. It is important to understand what elements should be included in anti-abolishment provisions and what rights you have if such clauses have been violated. When negotiating an anti-abolishment clause, such provisions must be explicit, unambiguous, comprehensive, and of relative brief duration.

Please contact SAANYS if your unit is consider negotiating an anti-abolishment clause. SAANYS attorneys will be happy to provide you with guidance in this process.

The top two candidates from each state and the District of Columbia will be named as state honorees on February 10, 2015. Each honoree will receive $1,000 awards, silver medallions, and a trip to Washington, D.C. for four days of recognition events from May 2-5, 2015.

Ten of the 102 state honorees will then be named as America’s top youth volunteers and will receive $5,000, gold medallions, crystal trophies for their nominating schools or organizations, and $5,000 grants for nonprofit charitable organizations of their choice.

able to offer the Assistant Principals Academy in four locations around the state. This academy, currently in session, is a hybrid model consisting of three onsite sessions (4-6pm) and two interactive online sessions (4:50pm) on topics that range from DASA to difficult conversations. Each cohort being limited to twenty participants, with both new and seasoned APs welcomed.

- The Webinar Wednesdays Nuts and Bolts series (4:30-5:30pm) is also currently running through December. Participants are receiving some quick tutorials on topics to enhance their skills and make their challenging role more manageable. Topics include working more effectively with your office staff, creating better presentations, learning more about flipped or blended models, or saving time with online meetings! Watch for more “Webinar Wednesdays!”

- Bill Daggett will fill us in on emerging trends that will impact our schools and share strategies that really make a difference in improving student achievement. He will be in locations from Long Island to Lake Placid through December. Full description is at saanys.org.

- Due to the popularity of our recent Google Camp done in collaboration with NYSCATE, we are holding another one on November 10 in Huntington, Long Island. This is a non-traditional and dynamic “un-workshoppy” format, which features collaborative learning, round table conversations, ‘make and take’ opportunities, and “How I Own Chrome Smackdowns!” Hard to resist if you are ready to become that connected lead learner! Finally: Our PD on demand catalogue: “PD Your Way” is in the process of a big revamp. It will become the central resource for regions who want to bold PD events for their constituents. If you want to have a workshop considered for inclusion in the catalogue, please send me the title and a fifty word description of the workshop with three bulleted takeaways for attendees, and I will be in touch. You can send it to me at kbronson@saanys.org. The sooner the better since this new resource will be completed over the next few weeks.

Hope your school year is going great and that you are enjoying this beautiful season!
