Improving Remote Learning for School Leaders Part Two: What Teachers Need and Want YOU to Know

Join us for part two as we delve into the challenges you and your teachers are facing with remote learning models as you strive to continuously improve remote models and build capacity to provide engaging learning to students. Regardless of where your school is now, or what your own level of expertise and ease is with technology and remote models, this honest and solution-centered discussion will leave you informed and reassured about what you can do over the course of this school year that brings progress in a way that decreases rather than increases existing anxiety around this steep learning curve.

Featuring:

JOLENE DI BRANGO
Executive Vice President, NYSUT

KATHRYN PROCOPE
Principal, Howard University Middle School of Math and Science, Washington DC and NASSP NATIONAL DIGITAL PRINCIPAL OF THE YEAR 2020

DR. GREGORY BROWN
Assistant Director of Curriculum and Instructional Services, Putnam Northern Westchester BOCES and winner of
